מזל טוב!

Mazel Tov on the upcoming Bar/Bat Mitzvah of your child! Planning for this simcha is a wonderfully exciting time that can be filled with both anticipation and anxiety. We present this booklet as a guideline to serve as a resource as you begin to plan for your simcha.

A Yasher Koach to parents from previous classes who have contributed to the ongoing development of this booklet. If you have any suggestions, thoughts, issues to consider, pitfalls to avoid, planning tips, success stories – we would like to hear from you and incorporate your ideas and suggestions into future editions of this booklet.

In The Beginning

Determining the Bar Mitzvah Parsha

The bo bayom is the day of a boy's actual Hebrew birthday. On that day, the child becomes a Bar Mitzvah, a Jewish adult who is fully responsible for the performance of the mitzvot. A child cannot lead a minyan in kriat haTorah until the day of his bo bayom. Please note: In the Hebrew calendar, the calendar day begins with sunset. Therefore, when determining a child's Hebrew birthday, someone born at night is the same as being born during the following day.

Please visit <https://www.hebcal.com/hebcal/> to find a calendar with all of the Hebrew dates and the parshiyot read on each Shabbat. And please visit https://www.chabad.org/calendar/bar-bat-mitzvah_cdo/aid/6227/jewish/BarBat-Mitzvah-Date-Calculator.htm to calculate the actual date of your child's Bar or Bat Mitzvah.

A Bar Mitzvah parsha is determined by which week the bo bayom falls out on a child's 13th birthday. The parsha chosen is whatever parsha is read after that day. If the bo bayom is on a Wednesday, for example, then the Bar Mitzvah parsha will be the parsha read on the following Shabbat.

A child automatically becomes a Bar Mitzvah on the day of his bo bayom. If there is a reason that the family cannot celebrate his Bar Mitzvah on the Shabbat immediately following the bo bayom, then the family could select any parsha following that day.

Setting the Date

Make sure to clear the date with the school calendar to avoid conflict of two smachot. Shalom Bayit is one of the highest values in the Torah and maintaining harmony in our school community is more important than having a simcha exactly on the day of the Hebrew birthday. Please contact the PTA Bar/Bat Mitzvah Calendar Coordinator at htpta@hilleltorah.org to inquire about availability and to schedule your simcha.

A great resource for ideas and suggestions is your child. What your child likes is very likely to be a good indicator of what his/her peers will like. Consider involving your child in planning the simcha to the extent that he/she feels comfortable. To avoid hurt feelings, either the entire grade or all children of your child's same gender, are to be invited to the Bar/Bat Mitzvah. Also, during the weekend, do not invite "most" or half of the kids to a luncheon and leave out others. We ask that you encourage your child to attend both the tefilla services and the parties of all of their classmates. This is important for building class unity and spirit, as well as enhancing the simcha of the Bar/Bat Mitzvah.

Torah Learning and Chesed

As you begin to plan, keep in mind that the essence of becoming a Bar/Bat Mitzvah is becoming obligated in the mitzvot. To mark this occasion, most students take on a learning and/or chesed commitment in the year or months before their simcha.

There are so many options for Torah learning: Chumash, Navi, a Megilla, Mishna, Tefilla, Halacha, Tehillim, Gemara etc. Many students will take on a unit of study and make a siyum at their party. Involving your child in these decisions can help make it something that they will connect to.

In planning for the learning, it is also important to consider the right person to study with your child: you, a relative, a friend of the family, a teacher, your shul Rabbi, or any combination of these. Take into account the relationship between your child and his/her tutor. This learning relationship often goes on for a long time and is very important. The person you choose should not only be well versed in the subject matter, but should be someone with whom your child is comfortable. Consider not only a one-on-one encounter, but one that includes one or both of the parents learning together with the child and tutor. The school can also be a resource to help find the right person for your child.

In addition, many students will commit to taking on a chesed project. We recommend a chesed that the child can be involved in themselves and something to which they feel connected. This should also be a process where the child is involved in making the decision. See the list of chesed opportunities at the end of this booklet.

Inviting Classmates

Bar/Bat Mitzvah celebrations are a great opportunity for building class unity and spirit. Towards that goal, and consistent with the general Hillel Torah guidelines, classmates should be invited as a group – one gender or the entire grade – to the Bar/Bat Mitzvah celebration. The same applies to a weekend. Parents should not invite "most" or half of the kids to a luncheon and leave out the others. To make sure everyone is included, please get an updated class list from the school office.

Shabbat Celebrations

Housing

The children usually make these arrangements on their own. While this process generally works well, there have been times when a child has been left out. It is important that we as parents acknowledge, together, that we must take care of our children, not only physically, but also emotionally. It can be very upsetting to a child when he/she is not included. All parents are encouraged to keep their eyes and ears open regarding the well-being of their child and his/her peers. If accommodations are not available, some families have offered to host children from other neighborhoods for Shabbat Bar/Bat Mitzvah celebrations. If you are coming in from out of town, and are having trouble finding a host, please reach out to the school.

Note to parents of the Bar/Bat Mitzvah: Families who host your child's friends are important partners in your simcha. It is important for them to know your simcha's schedule so that they can provide meals, when necessary, supervision, etc. for the time periods when the children are not occupied by the Bar/Bat Mitzvah activities. Also, consider calling or sending a note to the hosting families thanking them for hosting the children.

Note to Hosting Families: Please make sure to provide adequate supervision to the children staying at your home. This includes having the children at shul on time for davening and to hear their friend's laining, speech, etc. Also remind them of appropriate behavior at shul. On Friday nights and Shabbat afternoon children often socialize informally by visiting and walking from house to house. At these times it is important that you know where the children are going. Chaperoning the walk is imperative to ensure each child's safety. When they are in your home, make sure that appropriate activity and adequate supervision is provided at all times.

At Shul

Before a child participates as a guest at a Bar/Bat Mitzvah of a friend, it is imperative that parents take time to discuss in detail appropriate behavior for shul and the party. Children are expected to stay in shul throughout the services, Torah reading, and speeches. They are to actively participate in the davening, avoid talking or playing so they properly represent their family and school, and do not disrupt the simcha.

Remind your child that they are not only guests of the Bar or Bat Mitzvah child, but also represent the school in public. Their behavior should make us all proud. You may wish to ask friends of the family to keep an eye on the children and to patrol the halls outside the sanctuary to ensure that they are not "hanging out" there.

The Kiddush or Luncheon

Space: It is vital that space be adequate for the number of guests. Shoving and fighting can erupt if children feel they are being too crowded.

Food: Please ensure that all food meets kashrut guidelines. Please be aware of the possibility of children's special needs – cholov yisroel, allergies, etc. Please speak to your child in advance about the importance of waiting to hear kiddush from the Rabbi before starting to eat, as well as not pushing or grabbing for food. As hosts, think about serving “kid food” to the children, because they don't necessarily like fancy adult food. Consider serving them the types of food they'll happily eat. Ask your child and his/her friends for their suggestions. We strongly advise vigilant supervision over access to alcoholic beverages at the Kiddush table!

Speeches: Limiting the number and length of speeches helps curb children's talking and restless behavior. If you are having a luncheon, consider having the speeches at the beginning of the luncheon when children are most attentive, or spread them out throughout the meal.

Shabbat Afternoon Activities

Parents have found that the children enjoy having a Shabbat afternoon activity and/or a Seuda Shlishit for their friends. This need not be extravagant or overly burdensome.

If it is too difficult to add yet another event to an already busy and exciting day, consider exchanging hosting duties with the family of another child in the class: you host an activity or Seuda Shlishit for them on the Shabbat of their Simcha and they in turn do the same for you.

Instead of having a full meal at this time, consider serving a light meal.

Bar/Bat Mitzvah Parties

If you choose to have a Bar/Bat Mitzvah party, set a time frame with a reasonable start and finish. Parents should either know in advance what time children are to be picked up or know that the children will call when ready for pick-up. If parents are to await a call, make sure a telephone is available at the party location. The first option of having a set pick-up time avoids having children “hanging around” unsupervised while waiting for pick-up.

If there is a bus ride involved, please provide proper supervision for the students on the bus.

The school policy is NO MIXED DANCING. Please respect this halacha, as well as the feelings of students who will be uncomfortable attending a mixed dancing affair. The school will not endorse the attendance of our students at any parties that will not follow this rule. Additionally, during the days of the Omer (from Pesach through the day before Lag B'omer we ask that there not be live music as a part of the Bar or Bat Mitzvah party in accordance with the Halachot of mourning during that time.

Make sure the activities are age-appropriate and of interest to your child and his/her peers. (Consider asking your child for his/her input and suggestions.)

Make certain that the children are adequately supervised and kept interested and involved in the activities. Depending on the type of party, consider hiring high school or Bnei Akiva students to help supervise the children and keep them involved. Parents have reported that this works especially well with simcha dancing.

Giving children a place and meaningful activity at the simcha makes them feel that they are important. When children are treated with respect and their needs are addressed, they will respond with respect. Children rise to the occasion, just give them the opportunity.

If you choose to use the services of a D.J., please advise him of the No Mixed Dancing Policy of the school. Appropriate music helps create the character and atmosphere. The primary music should be Jewish music. Think about what is appropriate for a communal event. We understand that each family has its own traditions, but please be considerate to make sure every child would be comfortable and reflect the character of a Modern Orthodox school.

Seat some of your friends (parents) who are familiar with the children in the class near the children's tables. Ask them in advance to keep an eye on those tables and "shush" them if necessary. Also consider spreading children's tables out rather than having them all together in the same area.

Problems can occur during "down time" – e.g., when guests are first arriving, while children are waiting to be served, etc. As you plan the party, mentally picture the event step by step, identifying any points of potential "down time". Try to fill these time slots with some type of supervised, engaging activity.

Consider the best way to serve the food you have chosen: buffet-style, served at the table, etc. If you are serving buffet-style, take into account that children often hesitate to make their way to the food on a table surrounded by adults, even it means missing out on the meal. An easy solution is to serve the children from a separate buffet table.

Guidelines for Attending a Classmate's Simcha

The out of school celebration provides an opportunity for the children to rejoice with their classmate and contribute to the simcha. It goes without saying that upon attending a simcha, we expect all of our students to conduct themselves with mentchlechkeit. The following guidelines provide a direction for the students in order to insure that they use this opportunity to shine and create a Kiddush Hashem. These guidelines will be reviewed with the students:

1. Please respond to invitations promptly. Students should make every effort to attend a classmate's simcha. If you are unable to attend, please have your child notify the host as soon as possible.
2. Please make sure to dress appropriately in modest attire. If the celebration is on Shabbat, appropriate Shabbat attire should be worn throughout the day.
3. Upon arrival at the simcha, your child should immediately seek out the parents and grandparents of the Bar/Bat Mitzvah, introduce him/herself, and extend a sincere mazel tov and thank you for being included in the simcha.
4. Please remind your child to behave appropriately. Though speeches may at some point become tedious, it is important for our children to maintain proper derech erez throughout the affair. Cell phones should not be in use during the speeches.
5. Children should join in the tefilla if tefilla is part of the simcha. Children should attend shul in a timely fashion and should remain in shul for the duration of the davening.
6. Though it might be crowded, please wait patiently to partake of the buffet.
7. Please encourage your child to participate and join in the zmirot, dancing, and ruach. This is a momentous occasion in the life of your child's classmate. It is the job of every guest to enhance the experience for all to enjoy.

In-School Celebrations

Family members are encouraged to join the celebration in school when boys put on their tefillin for the first time and when they "lain" and receive their first aliya at the school Minyan on the Monday, Thursday, or Rosh Chodesh before their Bar Mitzvah. Please feel free to bring an appropriate snack, which has an appropriate hashgacha and is nut-free, for the entire 7-8 grades who eat breakfast all together. Please contact the Minyan Coordinator to schedule a day for these celebrations.

Girls are also encouraged to celebrate their Bat Mitzvah in school during 6th grade tefilla. Please contact the tefilla teacher to schedule the celebration.

Gift Program

In order to alleviate the expense of giving individual Bar and Bat Mitzvah gifts to each student, participation in the Bar/Bat Mitzvah Gift Program allows each child in the class to be part of giving a meaningful gift to each of his/her classmates as they reach this special milestone. This program also provides each student with the option of choosing a memorable gift package that they like. 6th grade parents will head this gift committee.

After Your Simcha

Please inform one of us about the children's behavior and any tips for future smachot. In this way, school will keep track of problems and take action if necessary.

Barbara Glimmer, Educational Advisor (847) 877-2476

Lone Soldier Connect is a unique program designed to partner youth and their families with the Lone Soldiers of the Israel Defense forces. Lone Soldiers are volunteers who serve in the IDF without the benefit of parents living in Israel. With family so far away, these soldiers are supported by organizations that let them know how much they are admired for their commitment to the survival of the State of Israel.

Lone Soldier Connect offers programs based on the understanding that letters written by students and family in Chicago, which are then sent to Lone Soldiers in Israel, help the soldiers to know that they are remembered and appreciated. Letters can be written as a class or individual project, at a party or family event. We provide facilitators to discuss the concepts of courage, commitment, bravery and love for Israel. Letters are collected and sent to Israel for distribution.

The Lone Soldier Center in memory of Michael Levin is “home away from home” for many of these soldiers. Shabbat dinners, Yom Tov celebrations and meals, friendship and adjustment help is available through a group of volunteers who are all former Lone Soldiers. The Center, located in Tel Aviv with smaller centers in Jerusalem, Haifa and Be’ersheva, reaches out to these courageous Lone Soldiers to let them know that they are all family and are never alone.
